Introduction to the Mount Hermon Invasion Series

Unveiling the Greatest Forbidden Chapter in Earth's Ancient Past

Long before the modern age of drones, DNA editing, and digital deception—before the ancient empires, before Babel, and even before the Flood—there was an invasion. Not by men. Not by beasts. But by angels.

Mount Hermon stands silent today, snowcapped and looming at the crossroads of ancient Israel, Lebanon, and Syria. But beneath its serene appearance lies one of the most catastrophic events in human history—an act of rebellion that shattered the barrier between the seen and the unseen. This is the story that mainstream Christianity has forgotten, academia has buried, and secret societies have tried to mimic. This is the story of the Watcher angels and the forbidden covenant they made upon this very mountain.

Genesis 6:1–4 gives us the bones: “The sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair...”

But the Book of Enoch fleshes it out in terrifying detail. Two hundred powerful heavenly beings descended—not to warn or protect—but to corrupt. Led by a chief angel named Semyaza, they made a pact—a blood oath—on Mount Hermon. These Watchers weren't content with heaven's command. They wanted Earth for themselves. They lusted for human women. They longed to pass forbidden knowledge into mortal hands. And so they did.

What followed was a genetic nightmare: giants, gibborim, Nephilim—unnatural offspring that became the gods of myth and monsters of legend. These beings ravaged the planet, devoured its resources, turned man against man, and seduced civilization into chaos. The cries of the earth rose up to heaven, and judgment came by water—but the spirits of those giants would never leave. The Watchers were bound in chains. Their progeny became disembodied spirits, what we now call demons.

But the story isn't over.

Jesus warned, “As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be...” (Matthew 24:37). And here we are again—tampering with DNA, conjuring false light, manipulating consciousness, and probing portals at CERN. The Mount Hermon Invasion isn't just ancient history. It's the spiritual blueprint of the Antichrist system that is rising again.

This ten-part exposé will take you deep into the shadows of Mount Hermon and far beyond:

- You'll witness the oath sworn by 200 angels.
- You'll trace the corruption of mankind's bloodline.
- You'll uncover the secrets taught by the Watchers—alchemy, enchantments, warfare, astrology, makeup, and manipulation.
- You'll follow the giants' rise, their fall, and their spirits' continued influence on our world.
- You'll connect the dots between Hermon's high place and the global high places of Freemasonry, false gods, and fallen angel technology.
- You'll see how modern UFOs, elite bloodlines, and scientific obsessions are paving the way for a second invasion.

This is not mythology. This is Scripture, prophecy, and spiritual warfare history buried by design.

The Church has been asleep. But the abyss is not.

Mount Hermon's shadow still stretches across our world. It marks the beginning of mankind's greatest corruption—and prophetically, it will mark the return of ancient evil. When the bottomless pit opens, as prophesied in Revelation 9, it won't be just smoke that rises—but the beings chained since the days of Noah.

Are you ready to learn what most seminaries won't teach?

Are you prepared to uncover why Hermon still matters?

Then enter the mountain. Trace the Watchers' descent. And prepare for the coming rise of the abyss.

1 of 10: The Mount Hermon Invasion – The Covenant of Rebellion: When the Watchers Took the Oath

Introduction: The Mountain of Sworn Defiance

Long before the floodwaters surged over the earth, before Noah’s ark was even a blueprint, a conspiracy erupted on a mountain that reached into the heavens. Mount Hermon—its snowy peaks piercing the skies of the ancient Middle East—became the setting of a cosmic rebellion. It wasn’t just a geographic landmark. It became a symbol of divine mutiny.

Genesis 6:1–4 hints at the strange happenings of that time, but the full narrative has long been buried under centuries of censorship and unbelief. Thanks to preserved fragments like the Book of Enoch and the corroboration of scripture in Jude and 2 Peter, we begin to understand what truly happened.

Two hundred powerful celestial beings, called the Watchers, descended upon Mount Hermon. And there, they made a pact—a binding oath of rebellion to take human wives and corrupt God’s creation. This was not an accident. It was a calculated infiltration, the first incursion of fallen beings into mankind’s domain.

This essay explores the who, what, where, and why of that moment. It examines why Mount Hermon was chosen, what the Watchers intended to accomplish, and how their defiant oath shaped not only the pre-Flood world but the spiritual war that still rages today.

The Biblical Clues: Genesis, Jude, and 2 Peter

Let’s begin with the Bible—the only standard of truth.

Genesis 6:1–2 (KJV) says:

“And it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them,
That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose.”

The “sons of God” (bene ha’elohim) are not humans. This same term is used in Job 1:6 and Job 38:7 to describe angelic beings.

Jude 1:6 adds more:

“And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.”

2 Peter 2:4 confirms:

“For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell [Tartarus], and delivered them into chains of darkness...”

The picture becomes clear: These were angels who abandoned their heavenly estate to take wives—an unnatural union forbidden by God. And the place where this plan was launched? Mount Hermon.

The Book of Enoch and the Mount Hermon Oath

Though not part of the canon, 1 Enoch preserves details known to early believers and even referenced by Jude himself. In 1 Enoch 6:1–7, we read:

“And they were in all two hundred; who descended in the days of Jared on the summit of Mount Hermon...

And they called it Mount Hermon, because they had sworn and bound themselves by mutual imprecations upon it.”

This wasn't some casual idea. They made a covenant—an angelic blood pact of rebellion.

Why an oath? Because what they were about to do was so egregious, they feared the consequences individually. The oath ensured no one could back out. All 200 would go down together—literally.

Their leader, Semjaza, feared he'd be left alone if others lost their nerve. So he forced them into a pact. This is reminiscent of Lucifer's rebellion—but this was different. Lucifer tried to ascend. These Watchers descended—to earth, to flesh, and to corruption.

Why Mount Hermon?

Mount Hermon is not just symbolic—it's geographically significant. Located at the northernmost part of ancient Israel, it stands as a spiritual borderland between heaven and earth.

Here's what makes it mysterious:

- Height: At over 9,000 feet, it's one of the tallest peaks in the region—called “the mountain of snow.”
- Name significance: “Hermon” comes from the Semitic root h₁rm, meaning “forbidden” or “accursed.”
- Strategic location: It borders Lebanon, Syria, and Israel—a confluence of ancient empires.

- Latitude: It sits on the 33rd degree north, a number associated with Freemasonry and esoteric symbolism.
- New Testament connection: In Matthew 16, when Jesus said “the gates of hell shall not prevail,” He was likely near Caesarea Philippi, at the base of Hermon.

Ancient civilizations believed that gods descended on mountains. This was no ordinary mountain. This was their chosen altar—one the Bible subtly references, and Enoch exposes.

Why Did They Descend? The True Agenda

Was it lust? Were the Watchers simply enamored by the beauty of human women?

That’s the shallow explanation. The truth runs deeper.

The Watchers didn’t just want wives—they wanted to tamper with God’s image on Earth.

Genesis says God made man in His image (Genesis 1:27). The Watchers sought to corrupt that image by breeding hybrids—giants (Nephilim), creatures never intended by God.

Their goal was two-fold:

1. Genetic Corruption: To pollute the seed line that would bring forth the Messiah (Genesis 3:15).
2. Domination of Earth: By teaching forbidden knowledge and creating superhuman offspring, they could enslave mankind and rule by terror.

They weren’t just “sons of God.” They were usurpers, acting under Lucifer’s broader war plan—to spoil creation before the Redeemer could arrive.

The Hidden Technology of Their Descent

The phrase “descended upon Mount Hermon” begs the question: How?

Flat earth cosmology suggests a firmament—a dome separating the waters above from the realm below (Genesis 1:6–8). The Watchers would have had to pass through this firmament, or breach a gate.

This aligns with Job 38:17, which references the “gates of death” and the “doors of the shadow of death.” Psalm 24:7 speaks of ancient gates.

Could the Watchers have entered through these portals?

Interestingly, many ancient megaliths, temples, and portals around the world share alignments with Mount Hermon's latitude, suggesting a network of spiritual stargates. Hermon may have been their entry point, but it was far from their final destination.

The Spiritual Impact on Earth

The consequences were devastating. These “angels of light” quickly became bringers of darkness.

According to 1 Enoch 8, they taught:

- Enchantments and root-cutting (Azazel)
- Metalworking and weaponry
- Cosmetics and seduction techniques
- Astrology and star-charting
- Cloud divination and omens

This was not knowledge meant for man. It was heaven's forbidden tech, dumped into the hands of corrupt flesh.

Civilizations advanced rapidly—but with demonic cost. Violence spread. Blood was shed. Giants ate men. Creatures were hybridized. The world was being destroyed—not by ignorance, but by enlightenment from hell.

The Fear of Accountability

Semjaza's insistence on a mutual pact reveals something fascinating—they were terrified of going alone. They knew they were transgressing.

This is the root of occultism to this day—shared guilt and secrecy. It's how societies like the Freemasons, Skull and Bones, and others operate. They echo Hermon's rebellion:

- A secret oath.
- Forbidden knowledge.
- A plan to overthrow God's order.

Lucifer said, “I will ascend...” (Isaiah 14:13–14), but the Watchers declared, “We will descend... and remake man in our image.”

Echoes in Mythology and Ancient Lore

The stories of gods mating with mortals are found across every ancient culture:

- Greek Titans
- Sumerian Apkallu
- Egyptian gods
- Hindu Devas
- Mayan sky-serpents

These are echoes of Hermon’s rebellion. The global deluge of gods, giants, and demigods all stem from that one cosmic transgression—when heavenly beings came down.

Hermon is not just a mountain—it’s a template for all false religions that followed.

The Lasting Impact: Why It Still Matters

We’re told in Daniel 2:43 that iron and clay will mix again—just like in the days of Noah. The Watchers’ sin is not over. It’s paused.

Jesus said in Matthew 24:37:

“But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.”

Their plan will resume. And it started with the oath.

Mount Hermon was the first summit meeting of fallen powers—but it won’t be the last.

Conclusion: The Mountain Still Speaks

The war began before Eden. But Mount Hermon was where it first touched Earth.

A mountain where angels made a blood oath. Where a plot was hatched to corrupt God’s creation. Where giants were born. Where false religions took root.

And the world has never recovered.

The Watchers' descent was not just physical—it was foundational to the fallen systems of this present world. From corrupted science to secret societies, from fallen angels to demonic possession—their oath still echoes.

But their time is short.

As we continue through this series, we will trace the ripple effects of the Mount Hermon rebellion—from hybrid monsters to chained angels, from forbidden technology to the portals of today. What started at the peak of Hermon now reaches to the depths of Tartarus.

Their oath sealed their fate.

And the Lord has already declared the end from the beginning.

2 of 10: The Mount Hermon Invasion – Giants in the Earth: The Rise of the Nephilim

Introduction: A New Breed Walks the Earth

The Book of Genesis records a strange and controversial event that has puzzled theologians, scholars, and seekers for millennia. Genesis 6:4 simply states:

"There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men which were of old, men of renown."

What does this verse really mean? Who were these "giants"? Who were the "sons of God"? Why did their union with human women bring about a race of hybrid offspring?

This essay digs deep into the second chapter of the Mount Hermon Invasion—the rise of the Nephilim. We will examine what happened after the 200 rebellious Watchers descended on Mount Hermon and took human wives. Their offspring—part celestial, part terrestrial—changed everything. The Nephilim were not merely giants in stature; they were tyrants, hybrid beings that corrupted the image of God, infiltrated bloodlines, and launched a spiritual and biological war on mankind.

Their existence triggered a cascade of events that led to the global flood, tainted ancient civilizations, and perhaps even shaped the myths of gods and heroes in every culture. And if the Bible says, "and also after that," then the shadow of the Nephilim lingers even still.

I. Genesis 6:4 – The Foundational Verse of the Nephilim

Genesis 6:4 is not metaphorical. It is precise. The "sons of God" (Hebrew: bene ha Elohim) refers to angelic beings—divine watchers assigned to observe, not interfere. But these Watchers violated their boundaries.

Their sin was twofold:

1. Biological – They took wives and bore children.
2. Spiritual – They attempted to corrupt God's creation.

The children of this unnatural union were called Nephilim, from the Hebrew root npl, meaning "fallen ones" or "those who cause others to fall." These hybrids were not ordinary. They were superior in intellect, strength, size, and wickedness. They were not made in the image of God but were distortions of that image.

These giants were not just anomalies—they were an invasion.

II. The Book of Enoch – A Second Witness

While not canon in the KJV, the Book of Enoch preserves ancient Jewish traditions about the Watchers and their offspring. According to Enoch 6–10:

- 200 Watchers descended on Mount Hermon and made a pact to defile mankind.
- They taught forbidden knowledge: weaponry, astrology, enchantments, root-cutting (pharmaceuticals), and cosmetics.
- Their children—the Nephilim—devoured everything. When food ran out, they turned to cannibalism and bloodshed.

Enoch 7:5–6 says:

"And they began to sin against birds, and beasts, and reptiles, and fish, and to devour one another's flesh and drink the blood. Then the earth laid accusation against the lawless ones."

This expansion of Genesis gives us a fuller image: the Nephilim were tyrannical, cannibalistic, and ravenous. Their existence corrupted not just mankind, but the entire biosphere.

III. The Size and Power of the Nephilim

Though ridiculed by modern academia, ancient accounts from across the world speak of giant races:

- Og, King of Bashan (Deuteronomy 3:11) slept in a bed over 13 feet long.
- The Anakim, Rephaim, Emim, and Zamzummim—all giant clans mentioned in the Old Testament.
- Native American legends speak of red-haired giants.
- Greek, Norse, Hindu, and Mesoamerican myths speak of titans, devas, and god-kings who ruled before the flood.

These were not allegories. They were memories passed down from survivors—fragments of a forgotten reality.

The Nephilim were hybrids, but not immortal. Their physical bodies died, but their spiritual essence—corrupt and bound to rebellion—became the unclean spirits that roam the earth, as suggested in Enoch 15 and echoed in New Testament demonology.

IV. Genetic Corruption: The Seed War

Genesis 3:15 tells us:

"And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed..."

The war between the seed of the serpent and the seed of the woman is not merely symbolic. It's genetic. The Watchers' goal was to pollute the Messianic line—to prevent the arrival of the Redeemer.

By spreading their hybrid DNA through intermarriage and dominion, the Nephilim sought to infect the entire human genome. Noah's family was chosen not just for faith—but for genetic purity.

Genesis 6:9:

"Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations..."

The Hebrew phrase tamim (perfect) is often used for physical integrity, suggesting Noah's lineage was untainted.

V. The Pre-Flood World: Ruled by Giants

What was life like under Nephilim rule? Genesis 6:11 gives a hint:

"The earth also was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence."

The Nephilim weren't just anomalies—they were oppressors. With their superior size, intelligence, and demonic influence, they:

- Built massive megalithic cities (many buried under sediment or covered in jungle today).
- Set themselves up as kings and gods.
- Enslaved mankind and initiated blood rituals.
- Consumed everything in sight—like locusts, they ravaged ecosystems.

This hybrid regime was unsustainable, and judgment was inevitable.

VI. The Flood: God's Surgical Strike

God's response was surgical, not reckless. The global flood was not just about cleansing sin—it was about destroying a hybrid infestation.

Only Noah's family and selected animals were preserved. The goal was to reboot the world—preserve the purity of creation and continue the promise of the Messiah.

However, Genesis 6:4 ominously states:

"...and also after that..."

This tells us the Nephilim came back—after the flood.

How? Possibilities include:

1. Some DNA or offspring survived on the ark through Ham's wife or another member.
2. The Watchers repeated their offense post-flood with a smaller group.
3. Nephilim spirits possessed new human hosts to recreate their bloodlines.

Whatever the method, the giants reemerged.

VII. The Return of the Giants – Post-Flood Echoes

Canaan was littered with giants when Israel entered the land:

- Anakim – seen by the 10 spies as "grasshoppers" by comparison (Numbers 13:33).
- Rephaim, Zamzummim, and Emim – described in Deuteronomy as formidable giants.
- Goliath of Gath – stood over 9 feet tall (1 Samuel 17).

God's command to Israel to "utterly destroy" certain nations was not ethnic cleansing—it was spiritual warfare to eliminate corrupted seed.

The giant clans had names, territories, and cities. Their existence was historical, not mythological.

VIII. From Giants to Gods: Cultural Amnesia

As civilizations spread and fragmented, memories of the Nephilim morphed into myth:

- Zeus, Apollo, Gilgamesh, Hercules, Baal, Quetzalcoatl—all may be echoes of the Nephilim.
- Their abilities, immortality, and divine parentage resemble Genesis 6 figures.

Ancient temples, pyramids, and megaliths testify to a race of builders with knowledge far beyond their supposed time.

These beings were remembered as gods, heroes, or monsters—but the Bible unmasks them: they were the unholy offspring of rebellious angels and humans.

IX. Suppression and Skepticism – Why This History Was Buried

The modern church and secular academia both shy away from the Nephilim narrative:

- It challenges Darwinian evolution.
- It undermines the "clean" Sunday School view of Genesis.
- It invokes the supernatural as literal.

But Jesus said in Matthew 24:37:

"But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

To understand the days ahead, we must understand the days behind. The Nephilim are not just ancient history—they are a prophetic warning.

X. The Spirit of the Nephilim Today

Though the giants are gone (for now), their spirit lives on:

- Genetic manipulation and transhumanism echo the hybrid agenda.
- Secret societies revere ancient gods and knowledge.
- Demonic possession and spiritual warfare trace back to the disembodied spirits of the Nephilim.

The war begun on Mount Hermon continues in laboratories, media, politics, and even pulpits. The goal is the same: corrupt the image of God, control humanity, and prevent Christ's return.

Conclusion: From Genesis to Revelation

The Nephilim saga is not a fringe doctrine—it is central to the story of redemption.

- They were born of rebellion.
- They ruled in terror.
- They were judged by God.
- And yet, their spirit roams still.

Revelation 9 speaks of the Abyss opening and locust-like beings emerging—hybrid horrors reminiscent of Genesis 6. These are not metaphors. They are a return of an ancient threat.

Jesus Christ is the seed of the woman who crushed the head of the serpent. But the serpent has not given up. The Nephilim were his greatest move before the flood—and perhaps they will be part of his final move before the return of the King.

As we continue this series, we will trace how the Nephilim migrated, influenced global civilizations, and how modern society still bears their fingerprints.

The Mount Hermon invasion was only the beginning.

3 of 10: The Mount Hermon Invasion – Forbidden Knowledge: What the Watchers Taught Mankind

Introduction: The Forbidden Curriculum of Heaven's Outlaws

When the 200 Watchers descended on Mount Hermon, they didn't come merely to satisfy lust or break divine law by taking human wives—they came with a curriculum. This wasn't just rebellion. It was a deliberate act of contamination. These angels introduced forbidden knowledge that reshaped early humanity, birthing civilizations built not on righteousness but on ruin. Genesis 6 gives us a brief glimpse, but it is the Book of Enoch and the fruits of ancient mythologies that echo this profound truth: the pre-flood world was not primitive. It was polluted with power.

From sorcery and weaponry to enchantments and astrology, the Watchers didn't just bring corruption—they brought culture. This essay will trace the blueprint of their teaching, unpacking how this forbidden knowledge manifests in today's secret societies, technological pursuits, and occult revivals. The same spirits that descended on Hermon have never stopped teaching.

I. The Scriptural Foundation: Genesis 6 and Jude 1

Let's begin where the Bible first introduces the incident. Genesis 6:1-4 outlines the moment "the sons of God" saw the daughters of men, took them as wives, and bore to them giants (Nephilim). While brief, the biblical passage sets the foundation for this unprecedented breach between heaven and earth.

Jude 1:6-7 reinforces the rebellion, stating:

"And the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness..."

These verses suggest something so heinous that it earned immediate imprisonment for many of the participants. But why such harsh punishment? Because they didn't just act immorally—they weaponized knowledge.

II. Enter Enoch: The Watchers' Curriculum

The Book of Enoch, while not canon, holds historical significance and context that many early church fathers acknowledged. In it, the Watchers are named—Semjaza, Azazel, and others—and each brings a unique area of forbidden instruction to mankind.

Here's a partial breakdown of what they taught, per Enoch 8:

- Azazel: Taught men to make swords, knives, shields, and breastplates—weaponry and warfare.
- Semjaza: Taught enchantments and root-cuttings—witchcraft and herbal manipulation.
- Armaros: Taught the resolving of enchantments—reverse spells and counter-curses.
- Baraqel: Taught astrology—heavenly divination and star mapping.
- Kokabel: Taught constellations—early forms of astral worship.
- Ezeqeel: Taught the knowledge of clouds—weather sorcery or meteorology for war?
- Shamsiel: Taught the signs of the sun—solar calendars and possibly sun worship.
- Sariel: Taught the course of the moon—lunar timing, cycles, and rituals.

This list reads like an ancient esoteric curriculum—a forbidden seminary of divine outlaws, turning men into magicians, sorcerers, and warlords. The result was not human advancement, but the birth of tyranny, idolatry, and spiritual enslavement.

III. The Rise of the Magi Class and Babylonian Echoes

Where did all this knowledge go? Into temples, ziggurats, mystery schools, and priesthoods. Ancient Babylon didn't just invent astrology—it inherited it. Egypt didn't originate alchemy—it rediscovered it. The great empires of Mesopotamia, India, South America, and even Atlantis legends all share suspiciously similar developments in:

- Metallurgy.
- Star-based religion.
- Human sacrifice.
- Genetic manipulation myths.
- Hidden priestly castes.

What these civilizations have in common is not a natural progression of intelligence, but an injection of knowledge—often guarded, ritualistic, and destructive. The Watchers laid the groundwork for the “gods” of old, whose hybrid children became kings, demigods, and blood-thirsty tyrants.

IV. The Feminine Agenda: Cosmetics and Seduction

One of the most bizarre mentions in Enoch is the teaching of makeup, beautification, and ornamentation. Some brush this off, but this teaching had implications far deeper than vanity.

Cosmetics, taught by the Watchers, were part of a broader sexual enchantment package—designed to seduce, deceive, and corrupt the human race. Women, as targets of fallen angels, became not only victims but instruments in spreading spiritual defilement through seduction. The use of powders, tinctures, and bodily modification became central in pagan priesthoods and sacred prostitution.

Even today, the beauty industry thrives on the same logic: deception for domination. And its roots trace back—not to Paris or Hollywood—but to Hermon.

V. Modern Echoes: The Secret Societies Who Still Study the Curriculum

This knowledge didn’t disappear in the flood. It went underground.

From the ancient Mystery Religions to the Rosicrucians, Knights Templar, Freemasons, and Illuminati orders, the Watchers’ teachings live on. Secret societies have always pursued:

- Control through hidden knowledge.
- Divine power without divine submission.
- Human enhancement without godliness.

Modern transhumanism, AI worship, quantum experimentation, genetic splicing, and CERN’s dimensional pursuits all find eerie parallels in what the Watchers originally taught—tampering with God’s design and unlocking realms not meant to be opened.

The same forbidden knowledge now wears a lab coat, runs billion-dollar tech firms, and boasts open-source “god-mode” agendas.

VI. The New Age and the Revival of Hermon Teachings

Today's New Age spirituality is a direct heir to Watcher wisdom:

- Channeling spirits (Armaros).
- Star signs and horoscopes (Kokabel).
- Divine feminine worship and goddess seduction (Semjaza).
- Energy healing through root-cutting and crystals (Semjaza).
- Climate rituals and geo-sorcery (Ezeqeel).

It's no accident that the world is embracing occult knowledge under the banner of science, wellness, and empowerment. The Hermon curriculum never vanished—it just rebranded.

And most churches remain blind to this infiltration.

VII. The Flood Was a Reset—But Not a Deletion

God sent the flood not just because men were wicked, but because their knowledge had reached irreversible corruption. Genesis 6:12 says, “All flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.”

The world was infected with angelic sin, and the only cure was a global reset.

But not all the knowledge was lost. Some was hidden. Some passed down. Some buried in the ruins of antediluvian cities. Post-flood patriarchs and their descendants remembered fragments. And just as demons were not all imprisoned, the teachings of their fathers survived.

VIII. Why God Forbade This Knowledge

It's easy to ask: What's so wrong with knowing the stars? Or herbal medicine?

The issue wasn't knowledge itself—it was the source and application. The Watchers taught truth out of season, to people unready for it, with motives rooted in rebellion. They turned tools into idols, beauty into control, and wisdom into rebellion.

Much like Satan in the Garden, they offered shortcuts to godhood—without righteousness. The result was not light, but darkness masquerading as enlightenment.

IX. Today's Digital Tree of Knowledge

We now live in the final iteration of this war: the digital age.

Modern man is once again seeking forbidden knowledge:

- Open-source occultism.
- Psychedelic enlightenment.
- CERN and portal experiments.
- AI consciousness summoning.
- Genetic edits that mirror the Nephilim corruption.

The world is eating from the Tree of Knowledge again—and the same serpent is behind it. The spirit of the Watchers is alive in Silicon Valley, secret military labs, and even entertainment. Hollywood is Hermon's loudspeaker. Netflix is a Watcher pulpit.

X. Christ vs. Hermon: The Final Curriculum

But while the Watchers teach rebellion, Christ teaches redemption.

Jesus is not just the Savior of mankind—He is the restorer of divine order. He undoes every corruption, breaks every enchantment, and exposes every secret. His gospel is the only curriculum that reverses the effects of Hermon.

Colossians 2:15 says:

“And having spoiled principalities and powers, he made a show of them openly, triumphing over them in it.”

While the Watchers taught sorcery, Christ offers the Holy Spirit. While they gave weapons, He gives the Sword of the Word. While they pushed stars and signs, He offers Himself—the Bright and Morning Star.

Conclusion: Who Are You Learning From?

The real question isn't just whether the Watchers existed—but whether you're still learning from them today.

- When you chase zodiac signs, you're sitting under Kokabel.

- When you call on spirits, you're following Armaros.
- When you practice enchantments, you're in Semjaza's class.

This war didn't end with the flood. The curriculum survived. The question is: have you enrolled in the Kingdom of Light—or are you still in the Watchers' academy?

Choose your teacher wisely.

Let the reader remember: Mount Hermon was not just a rebellion. It was a school—and its graduates are running the world today.

But their graduation day will end in judgment.

Because the Lord of Heaven is coming to shut the gates of their classroom. Forever.

4 of 10: The Mount Hermon Invasion – Mount Hermon's Shadow: Why This Mountain Still Matters

Introduction: More Than Just a Mountain

Mount Hermon. At first glance, it's just a mountain—snow-capped, beautiful, and shared between Lebanon, Syria, and Israel. But beneath its rocky slopes lies a saga of ancient rebellion, forbidden knowledge, divine judgment, and prophetic importance. Hermon is not merely a high peak—it is a high place, spiritually speaking. This fourth essay in our ten-part series traces Hermon's lingering shadow across history, cosmology, and prophecy. Its placement on the 33rd degree north parallel is no accident. Neither are the countless occult associations, esoteric military bases, and historic ruins that surround it. Hermon was the site of a cosmic crime scene—and the repercussions still ripple today.

In this study, we explore how Mount Hermon's ancient rebellion continues to echo in our world—how fallen entities might still be accessing our realm, why elite societies seem obsessed with “high places,” and how all of this sets the stage for future judgment.

1. The Oath on Hermon – A Quick Review

According to the Book of Enoch, a group of 200 Watchers—fallen angels—descended to the summit of Mount Hermon. There, they entered into a pact to violate God’s created order by taking human wives (Genesis 6:1-4). Enoch 6:6 declares:

“And they were in all two hundred; who descended in the days of Jared on the summit of Mount Hermon, and they called it Mount Hermon because they had sworn and bound themselves by mutual imprecations upon it.”

Hermon thus became the altar of rebellion—a place where heavenly beings turned against the Most High. They didn't descend randomly. They picked this spot because of its spiritual geography. Something about Hermon made it a crossing point—a cosmic threshold.

Today, occultists, secret societies, and global elites still flock to sacred high places, invoking unseen powers. Why? Because, as Scripture shows us, high places have always been where heaven meets earth.

2. The 33rd Degree Parallel – Hidden in Plain Sight

Here’s where things get wild: Mount Hermon lies at approximately 33.33°N latitude—a degree long known to occult circles and Masonic lore. The 33rd degree is the highest level in Freemasonry, symbolizing illumination, knowledge, and power. But biblically, the number 33 is often associated with judgment, promises, and death:

- Jesus died at 33.
- King David ruled Jerusalem for 33 years.
- The name "Lucifer" appears 33 times in the KJV Bible (coincidence?).

Mount Hermon’s coordinates aren’t a mystical accident—they point to something spiritual. Many occult groups believe this line holds portals or “ley lines” of supernatural energy. From ancient Mesopotamia to modern NASA launchpads, the 33rd parallel is consistently referenced when discussing locations tied to spiritual phenomena, ritualistic activity, and even demonic infestation.

Is Hermon still a gate?

3. The Spirits Trapped Beneath

In Jude 1:6, we read of angels who left their “first estate” and are now bound in chains:

“And the angels which kept not their first estate... he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.”

Peter echoes this in 2 Peter 2:4:

“God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell [Tartarus], and delivered them into chains of darkness.”

Tradition holds that many of these angels—perhaps the very Watchers of Hermon—are still bound beneath that region, awaiting judgment. In ancient Jewish cosmology, the concept of Sheol and the “deep” often associated underground prisons beneath high places, mountains, or watery depths.

Mount Hermon may very well sit atop a prison. If so, its spiritual disturbance isn't from what's atop it—but what's beneath.

4. A Site of War and Manifestation

Mount Hermon wasn't just a place of rebellion—it was a site of confrontation.

In Matthew 16, Jesus and his disciples go to Caesarea Philippi—located at the foot of Mount Hermon. There, at the very gates of the ancient pagan underworld, Jesus declared:

“Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.”
(Matthew 16:18)

Then, in the very next chapter (Matthew 17), Jesus is transfigured—likely atop Mount Hermon. He reveals his heavenly glory to Peter, James, and John. His face shines like the sun. His clothes radiate pure light. Moses and Elijah appear. A voice from heaven declares, “This is my beloved Son.”

Think about that: the same mountain where the Watchers descended in rebellion is likely where Christ manifested his divine nature.

Coincidence? Not likely.

It's as if Jesus declared spiritual war on enemy ground—proclaiming that no matter what rebellion took place here, He is the rightful King.

5. Military Bases and Modern Obsession

Today, Mount Hermon is heavily militarized. Israel operates surveillance systems on its slopes. The United Nations has long stationed personnel in the area. Satellite equipment, radar domes, and underground complexes are scattered across the region. Why so much military interest in an old, snowy mountain?

Conspiracy theorists suggest the area is still being used for occult research, interdimensional access, or Watcher-related excavation. While we must be cautious with such claims, the spiritual legacy of Hermon is hard to ignore.

Biblically, wherever angels fell, giants rose, and God judged—there’s always a pattern of earthly kingdoms trying to reclaim forbidden knowledge.

6. Hermon and the Vatican Connection

The Catholic Church has expressed interest in Hermon as a possible site of the Transfiguration. In fact, ancient Christian tradition debated whether it was Mount Tabor or Mount Hermon. But scholars increasingly point to Hermon due to its proximity to Caesarea Philippi and its great height.

Some speculate that global religious powers know something about Hermon they aren’t saying. Could this mountain play a role in end-times deception?

Revelation 9:2 speaks of the “bottomless pit” being opened—and smoke rising like a great furnace. Could Mount Hermon—or a fault line beneath it—be one of these “gates of hell”?

7. The Giants Beneath the Ice

Mount Hermon forms part of the Anti-Lebanon range, which connects to ancient territories known for Nephilim activity. Og of Bashan, king of the Rephaim, ruled just south of Hermon. The land was teeming with giants even after the Flood (Numbers 13:33; Deuteronomy 3:11).

Many flat-earth researchers also speculate that Hermon may be a surface marker for deeper realms beyond the known map—territories where Nephilim civilizations may have once flourished. The snow and ice atop Hermon, they claim, conceal more than snowflakes—they cloak secrets buried in time.

8. Hermon in Prophecy and Future Warfare

Psalms 133:3 speaks of “the dew of Hermon,” connecting it to blessing and anointing—but also hinting at its elevated spiritual importance.

Isaiah 34:2-5 speaks of judgment coming upon the “host of heaven”—cast down like figs. Enoch prophesies that the Watchers will return for judgment. Revelation 12 speaks of war in heaven, and Satan being cast down with fury.

Hermon, as an ancient site of rebellion, may play a role again. Just as Jesus transfigured himself on this mountain, the Antichrist may attempt some form of false miracle or heavenly descent. It may be the place where the final Watcher-based deception is unleashed.

9. Hermon and the Alien Connection

Let’s go there.

UFO researchers often report increased activity along the 33rd parallel—especially near Hermon. The mountain is associated with strange lights, unexplainable aerial phenomena, and even “beings of light” appearing to mystics. Many of today’s so-called aliens exhibit the same behavior as ancient Watchers: genetic tampering, deception, claiming to be gods, and offering forbidden knowledge.

Are we watching a new Mount Hermon descent?

If these are the same beings—or their descendants—then the past is not over. The Watchers may not be returning. They never left.

10. Spiritual Application – Redeeming the Heights

As believers, we must reclaim the high places—not physically, but spiritually.

Paul reminds us in Ephesians 6:12:

“We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers... in high places.”

That includes Hermon.

What began as rebellion atop a mountain ends in glory. Jesus confronted the darkness at Hermon. He transfigured himself as a foreshadowing of his victory. We must not fear these dark strongholds. We must shine light into them.

Through prayer, discernment, and knowledge of Scripture, we stand firm in the authority of Christ—who rules from above all principalities and powers.

Conclusion: From First Descent to Final Judgment

Mount Hermon remains a mystery wrapped in history and steeped in prophecy. It is the location where heaven's first rebels touched down and where Jesus revealed his eternal glory.

From ancient oaths to modern militaries, the world has never stopped watching Hermon.

And perhaps that's because Hermon is still watching us.

The mountain's shadow stretches not just across the Middle East—but across time itself. A shadow of rebellion. A symbol of deception. And—if we pay close attention—a prophetic marker of what's still to come.

Let us not be caught off guard.

Let us watch the Watchers.

Because the war that began on Mount Hermon... is not over yet.

5 of 10: The Mount Hermon Invasion – The Cry of the Giants – When the Earth Pleaded for Judgment

Introduction: The Blood of the Earth Cried Out

There is a sound that echoes beyond words—a cry so deep and full of agony that even heaven takes notice. It is not merely the voice of victims, nor just a lament of the oppressed. It is the earth itself groaning under the weight of violence, defilement, and unnatural corruption. According to the Book of Enoch and hints throughout Scripture, there came a time in the pre-flood world when creation itself could no longer bear the burden of what walked upon it: giants. The Nephilim.

These were not simply oversized humans. They were genetic monstrosities, hybrid offspring of fallen angels and women, birthed through a union that was never meant to be. Their rebellion went far beyond existence; it escalated into a nightmare of conquest, cruelty, and cannibalism. Eventually, the cry of the earth became unbearable—and judgment came.

The Nephilim Reign: A World in Terror

Genesis 6:4 says plainly: “There were giants in the earth in those days, and also after that...”—a simple line that speaks volumes. These Nephilim were not just legends, they were rulers. Tyrants. Architects of the first global dystopia. According to the Book of Enoch, their fathers—the Watchers—descended at Mount Hermon and took wives. The resulting hybrids were violent, gluttonous, and utterly detached from the human soul.

They devoured all the produce of men

They exhausted natural resources at such a rate that human civilization began to collapse. Agriculture could not keep up with their demands. Crops failed under their feet. Like locusts with swords, they swarmed through lands, leaving famine behind.

...And when men could no longer sustain them, the giants turned against them

Starvation gave way to savagery. Cannibalism ensued—not just of animals, but of men. And soon after, of one another. It was a reign of horror. Giants began to drink the blood of humans, feasting on their flesh. This was no myth. It was a twisted inversion of God’s law of life. These monsters embodied everything God called abomination.

And the earth complained

Yes—the earth itself. Enoch 7:6 tells us: “The earth laid accusation against the lawless ones.” This matches Romans 8:22: “For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now.” The blood spilled on the ground cried out, like Abel’s did in Genesis 4:10—but now multiplied by the millions.

Hybrid Abomination: Crossing the Lines of Creation

The Nephilim were not just big. They were unnatural. The laws God set in place for kinds and species were being shattered. According to Enoch, the Watchers taught forbidden arts—genetic manipulation, root-cutting, enchantments. This knowledge extended into the corruption of animals.

Tampering with kinds

Genesis 6:12 says: “And God looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.” Not just man—all flesh. It implies tampering at the DNA level. This mirrors modern science today: CRISPR, chimera embryos, artificial intelligence merging with biology. What happened before is happening again.

The Nephilim were at the center of this corrupted world order. They were physical symbols of rebellion, living mockeries of the image of God. Their bodies were temples of defilement, and their appetites were gateways of demonic power.

The Earth Cried, Heaven Heard

Enoch records a moment of supernatural turning point: the archangels—Michael, Uriel, Raphael, and Gabriel—observe the destruction and bring it to God’s attention. The cry had reached heaven. The earth had spoken, and justice demanded a response.

The Giants Beg for Mercy

Enoch 13–15 describes the Watchers sending Enoch to petition God on their behalf. Cowardice took over. These once-proud rebels now begged for mercy—but it was too late. God would not reverse judgment. Their children—the Nephilim—were doomed to be hunted and destroyed.

“You have defiled yourselves with the daughters of men...you will have no peace.” (Enoch 15:2)

The souls of the giants would become demons

One of the most shocking revelations in Enoch is that when the giants died, their spirits remained—doomed to roam the earth as unclean spirits. These are the demons Jesus encountered. Not fallen angels, but their bastard offspring. Disembodied, enraged, and ever-thirsting for flesh. This explains why demons crave embodiment—they once had one.

The Judgment: A Flood of Divine Wrath

God does not strike without warning. He sent Noah, a preacher of righteousness. But the world would not listen. The earth had become a war zone of corruption and hybridization. The timeline ran out.

The Deluge Was a Reset

Genesis 6:17: “And, behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh.” This was not an act of vengeance—it was a global cleansing. A spiritual quarantine. God erased an entire generation infected with genetic blasphemy.

Why Only Noah?

Because he was “perfect in his generations.” (Genesis 6:9) This isn’t just moral—“perfect” here refers to tamim, meaning unblemished, like a lamb for sacrifice. His bloodline was not corrupted. This was about preserving the seedline of the Messiah.

Ark of Salvation vs. Ark of the Covenant

Just as Noah’s Ark preserved God’s image bearers, the Ark of the Covenant would later preserve God’s Word. One was wood, one gold—but both protected holy things. God always prepares a remnant.

The Echoes Today: Giants in Myth and Memory

The giants are gone—but their memory remains.

Giants in Mythology

Nearly every ancient culture speaks of titans, demigods, or colossi. From the Greek Titans to the Norse Jotunn, from Gilgamesh to Goliath—these legends echo one truth: the world once trembled under beings of immense size and power. Why would so many cultures independently invent the same myth? They didn’t. They remembered.

Giants in Architecture

From the megalithic stones of Baalbek to the cyclopean walls of Peru, to the rumored melted cities and mountains that resemble ruins—these structures hint at a time when beings of great strength existed. Did they leave their mark on the architecture of a lost world?

Prophetic Implications: As It Was in the Days of Noah

Jesus warns in Matthew 24:37: “But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.”

What were those days?

- Genetic corruption

- Technological overreach
- Rampant occultism
- Demon-human interaction
- Mass deception
- Divine judgment on the horizon

That is not just ancient history—that is tomorrow’s headline.

We are returning to the cry. The blood of millions—aborted babies, trafficked victims, human experimentation—is rising again. And heaven will answer. God will not be silent forever.

The Earth Still Groans

Romans 8:22 says creation still groans. We are living in a time when the cry has begun again. Giants may not walk the earth physically, but their legacy of rebellion, sorcery, and corruption has been reborn in labs, boardrooms, and rituals in high places.

Who listens to the cry today?

Noah did. Enoch did. Elijah did. The apostles did. Will we? Or will we ignore it?

Because the next flood will not be of water—but of fire.

Conclusion: A Roar Before the Return

The cry of the giants was not just horror—it was prophecy. It foreshadowed the spiritual state of a world gone mad. The Nephilim represent the pinnacle of rebellion: against nature, against God, against His image in man. They reigned briefly—but their end was total.

Yet the war is not over.

Their spirits roam. Their ideology lives. Their technologies are being reawakened. And their goal—the destruction of mankind and the image of God—is still active.

But so is the cry. And heaven still hears it.

The question now is—do we?

6 of 10: Chains in the Abyss – The Watchers’ Judgment and Imprisonment

Introduction: The Reckoning of the Rebellious

Before the floodwaters ever reached the mountaintops... before the ark was even a blueprint... there was a war in the unseen realm. A rebellion that did not begin with man, but with those who were meant to watch over man—celestial beings the Bible calls the “sons of God” and the Book of Enoch calls “the Watchers.” They were not content with their estate. They crossed a line no angel was meant to cross, descending onto Mount Hermon to take wives of human women and defile the image of God in flesh.

This was no spontaneous act. It was a covenant—a pact sealed in defiance. And from that defiance came the Nephilim: giants, tyrants, monsters. These beings brought ruin to the world, and the cries of the earth reached heaven. God responded—not with partial judgment—but with chains. Everlasting chains. In darkness. In a place beneath the foundations of the earth known as Tartarus.

In this essay, we explore the forgotten judgment of the Watchers, the abyss that holds them, and the question: why does this still matter today?

1. Who Were the Watchers?

Genesis 6:1-2 begins with the strange declaration:

“...the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose.”

These “sons of God” were not human beings. The term in Hebrew—bene Elohim—is consistently used in the Old Testament to refer to divine or angelic beings (Job 1:6, Job 38:7). These were angelic watchers—those given oversight of humanity. But instead of watching, they invaded.

According to 1 Enoch 6, two hundred of these beings descended on Mount Hermon, swore an oath together, and conspired to corrupt mankind. Led by Semjaza and Azazel, they introduced a campaign of corruption: taking women, creating offspring, and introducing forbidden knowledge.

2. Their Sin: Crossing the Line Between Heaven and Earth

The sin of the Watchers was twofold:

1. Physical Defilement – They left their “first estate” (Jude 1:6) and defiled themselves with human women.
2. Spiritual Corruption – They taught mankind hidden knowledge—sorcery, enchantments, weapon-making, astrology, and vanity.

The offspring of these unions—the Nephilim—were giants (Genesis 6:4), men of renown. But these were no heroes. They were abominations. They devoured mankind, drank blood, and turned the world into chaos.

3. The Earth’s Cry and God’s Response

The Book of Enoch records that the earth itself cried out:

“The earth made accusation against the lawless ones.” (Enoch 7–8)

Humanity was not only suffering, it was being extinguished. Giants turned on man. Man turned on creation. Nature bled. The spiritual realm could no longer ignore the violation. God sent word to Enoch, to prophesy against the Watchers and pronounce their doom.

4. Tartarus: The Prison Below

2 Peter 2:4 says:

“For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell [Tartarus], and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment...”

The word used here—Tartarus—is unique in Scripture. It is not the usual “Gehenna” or “Hades.” It is a term borrowed from Greek cosmology, referring to the lowest abyss beneath Hades. It is described in Enoch as a place “dark and desolate,” with columns of fire and torment.

Jude 1:6 confirms the same:

“...the angels which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.”

This was not symbolic. It was literal. A real judgment. A real prison.

5. The Binding by Archangels

Enoch records that God commissioned four archangels—Michael, Uriel, Raphael, and Gabriel—to execute judgment:

- Semjaza and his fellow leaders were bound hand and foot.
- Azazel was cast into a pit in the desert and covered with sharp stones.
- The place of their binding? “The valleys of the earth,” beneath the mountains and wilderness.

These beings were to remain in torment, watching as their children—the Nephilim—were destroyed in the flood.

6. Fate of the Nephilim Spirits

This is one of the most chilling revelations of Enoch:

“The spirits of the giants... shall be upon the earth and shall afflict mankind... for they proceed from men and from the holy Watchers... they shall be called evil spirits.” (Enoch 15)

When the Nephilim died, their bodies perished—but their spirits did not ascend. They remained trapped, wandering, hungry, angry. These are what we now call demons.

They are disembodied hybrids—neither fully angel nor human—bound to the earth until final judgment. This explains why Jesus encountered them during His earthly ministry: always tormenting, always possessing, always seeking bodies.

7. Modern Echoes: Are These the Same Spirits?

Absolutely. The New Testament is filled with encounters:

- Demons cry out: “Art thou come to torment us before the time?” (Matthew 8:29)
- They beg not to be cast into the abyss (Luke 8:31).
- Jesus described some that “walk through dry places, seeking rest” (Matthew 12:43).

They are still here. Still active. Still ruled by their ancient lusts.

8. Tartarus and the End Times

In Revelation 9, the fifth trumpet sounds—and a star falls to earth. He opens the Bottomless Pit (Greek: Abyssos). Smoke rises. Out come locust-like beings with scorpion stings and a king named Apollyon.

Is this Tartarus reopened? Are the Watchers finally released?

Many believe Revelation 9 describes a future unsealing of the spiritual prison beneath the earth. The world will once again face beings that tormented pre-flood humanity. The “days of Noah” will return.

9. Why This Matters Now

This is not just ancient history. It’s the foundation for understanding:

- Why the world is obsessed with hybridization (AI, DNA, transhumanism).
- Why spiritual warfare involves invisible forces who hate mankind.
- Why secret societies and occult rituals echo the Watchers’ forbidden teachings.

The same spirits roam today. The same deception continues. But the judgment remains. They are bound. And they know their time is short.

10. Conclusion: Locked Away, But Not Forgotten

The Watchers are still in chains. Their prison—Tartarus—remains shut.

But their legacy is not erased.

The demons that roam, the corruption of mankind’s DNA, the obsession with forbidden knowledge—all trace back to Mount Hermon. And one day, these chains will be loosed, not for pardon—but for final judgment.

Their fate is sealed.

And if they tremble at what is coming... so should we be sober, alert, and prepared.

For the King who judged them is coming again.

7 of 10: The Mount Hermon Invasion – Spirits of the Dead Giants: Are Demons the Nephilim?

Introduction: The Lingering Question of Evil Spirits

The spiritual world is teeming with invisible forces. Christians acknowledge this in theory, but few realize the origin story of demons has far deeper and more ancient roots than most churches teach. Where do these unclean spirits come from? Why do they crave embodiment? Why are they so obsessed with possession, torment, and destruction?

The answer lies not merely in Satan or the fall of angels, but in the aftermath of the Mount Hermon rebellion—a mutiny so severe, so unnatural, that it left behind corrupted offspring whose existence defied God’s created order. These offspring were the Nephilim, hybrid giants born of angel and woman. And when they died, their spirits did not return to God who gave them life, because they were never meant to exist in the first place.

This essay lays out the biblical, historical, and theological evidence for the argument that demons are the disembodied spirits of the Nephilim—roaming the earth in a restless state, seeking flesh to inhabit, and waging war on mankind as bitter outcasts from both heaven and earth.

1. The Genesis 6 Prelude – Illicit Unions and Unnatural Offspring

Let’s begin with Genesis 6:1–4:

“There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them...”

These “sons of God” are not men, as some modern theologians claim. The phrase in Hebrew, bene ha’elohim, is always used in the Old Testament for divine beings (see Job 1:6, 2:1, 38:7). They were angelic watchers who crossed a boundary God had set.

From these forbidden unions came the Nephilim—giant hybrids of angelic essence and human biology. They were not part of the created order. They were the children of rebellion. The Book of Enoch, though not canonical, gives supporting insight that early Jews and Christians accepted: 200 angels descended on Mount Hermon, took wives, and produced monstrous offspring who began to devour mankind and creation.

But what happened when these giants died? This is where the story takes a dark and fascinating turn.

2. The Hybrid Problem – No Place in Heaven or Hell

Humans have a soul and a spirit. Angels are spirits. But what about a hybrid?

The Nephilim were neither fully human nor angelic. They were illegal lifeforms. Thus, their souls had no designated resting place. According to Enoch and Jubilees, when these giants died in the Flood or in the wars afterward, their spirits remained earthbound.

This fits perfectly with the Bible's depiction of demons:

- They are disembodied and crave bodies (Luke 11:24).
- They are unclean, not part of God's ordered design.
- They are tormented and fear judgment (Matthew 8:29).
- They influence violence, lust, occultism, and self-destruction—just like their fathers before them.

They are not fallen angels. Fallen angels, like those bound in Tartarus (2 Peter 2:4, Jude 1:6), are not free to roam. Demons, however, wander the earth, enter humans and animals, and seek to corrupt, afflict, and possess.

This points to one conclusion: demons are the disembodied spirits of the Nephilim.

3. The New Testament Connection – Demonic Behavior Explained

Let's examine how the New Testament supports this idea when read through the correct lens:

- Luke 11:24–26 describes an “unclean spirit” walking through dry places, seeking rest. It finds none. So it returns to the man it previously possessed and brings seven more spirits, worse than itself.

Why does it seek rest? Why does it need a body?

A fallen angel has no such need. But a spirit born into flesh, like a Nephilim soul, would crave re-embodiment.

- Matthew 8:28–29 features the demons of the Gadarene man screaming, “Art thou come hither to torment us before the time?”

These spirits know they're awaiting final judgment. But they're not in chains—yet.

These aren't fallen angels. Fallen angels are already bound (2 Peter 2:4). These are unclean spirits, the hybrid offspring of the Watchers.

- Mark 5 details the demoniac named Legion, filled with many spirits. When Jesus cast them out, they begged not to be sent away but allowed to enter pigs.

What spirit desires a body—even an animal's? A spirit once born in flesh.

The behavior, craving, and fear of these beings all fit the profile of Nephilim spirits far better than traditional notions of fallen angels.

4. The Book of Enoch – Ancient Testimony from the Watchers Era

Though not canonized, the Book of Enoch was quoted by Jude, referenced by Peter, and widely known in the early church. It provides a critical missing link.

In 1 Enoch 15, God tells Enoch to rebuke the Watchers and declares:

“The spirits of the giants... shall afflict, oppress, destroy, attack, do battle, and work destruction on the earth... and these spirits shall rise against the children of men and against the women.”

Enoch states clearly: when the giants die, their spirits remain on earth.

“From the bodies of their flesh, their spirits shall come forth, and these spirits shall be called evil spirits upon the earth.”

This lines up precisely with what Jesus, Paul, and the apostles encountered—and it explains why demons fear judgment, wander, and seek habitation.

5. The Spiritual Warfare We Face Today

Understanding demons as the spirits of Nephilim changes how we view spiritual warfare.

- Possession isn't just a freak occurrence—it's a continuation of the war that began before the Flood.
- Secret societies, occult rituals, and even globalist agendas may unknowingly be channels for these ancient spirits.
- Curses, generational iniquity, and strongholds may have more to do with these entities than previously thought.

This war is not just between God and Satan—it's between God's creation and the corrupt legacy of the Watchers' offspring.

6. What Happened After the Flood? Post-Flood Giants and Their Spirits

Genesis 6:4 says:

“...and also after that.”

The Nephilim returned post-Flood through further angelic incursions or perhaps preserved DNA through wives on the ark. Tribes like the Anakim, Rephaim, Emim, Zamzummim, and Og of Bashan were post-Flood giants.

When these died, their spirits also became demons.

This may explain the hierarchy of demons mentioned in Ephesians 6:12:

“Principalities, powers, rulers of darkness... spiritual wickedness in high places.”

Some spirits may be stronger than others. Some may rule over territories or bloodlines. But all of them trace back to one source: the hybrid offspring of Mount Hermon.

7. Demonic Agenda – Rebuilding the Hybrid Race

Jesus warned that the last days would be as in the days of Noah (Matthew 24:37). That was a time of Nephilim, corrupted flesh, and violence. Today, we see:

- Genetic modification and transhumanism.
- Obsession with hybridization and AI embodiment.
- Portals, rituals, and CERN-type experiments.
- UFOs and abduction stories involving hybrid breeding programs.

This is not new. This is the return of an old enemy trying to recreate its former glory. The Nephilim spirits seek to return to flesh, to make war again, to deceive mankind.

8. Deliverance and Authority – Why Jesus Came in the Flesh

Jesus wasn't just casting out demons as a miracle. He was confronting the enemy of humanity's past. His authority over these spirits proved that He alone had power over life, death, and the spiritual realm.

Luke 10:17–20 records the disciples rejoicing:

“Even the devils are subject unto us through thy name.”

Jesus answered:

“I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven... Rejoice not that the spirits are subject unto you, but rather that your names are written in heaven.”

Deliverance ministry isn't just psychological therapy—it's a direct confrontation with the ghost army of the old world.

Conclusion: A War Older Than Eden

Demons aren't cartoon devils or mythical ghouls. They are the cursed, disembodied souls of beings never meant to exist—the children of fallen angels and human women, punished by God through the Flood, and doomed to wander until the final judgment.

They are ancient. They are angry. They are organized. But they are also defeated.

Colossians 2:15 – “And having spoiled principalities and powers, he made a show of them openly, triumphing over them in it.”

Their days are numbered. The same Jesus who cast them out will one day cast them all into the lake of fire.

But until then, the battle continues.

Know your enemy. Know his origin. Know your victory in Christ.

8 of 10: The Mount Hermon Invasion – High Places and Holograms: How the Invasion Influences Today

Introduction: The War That Never Ended

What began on Mount Hermon was not a one-time rebellion—it was an invasion that shaped human history. Though most dismiss the story of the Watchers as myth, the ancient records of Enoch, Genesis, and other Scriptures hint at a spiritual conspiracy that never ended—it only evolved. This essay peels back the veil to reveal how the ancient incursion by the Watchers still influences today’s world through high places, occult rituals, elite bloodlines, and even emerging technologies like AI and holograms.

We will explore a shocking thesis: That the same fallen beings who descended on Hermon are still guiding humanity’s course—through secret knowledge, false miracles, and high-tech deception. Their tools have changed, but their agenda remains: to corrupt mankind, defile the image of God, and prepare the world for a final deception.

Section 1: From Altars to Algorithms – A Legacy of High Places

The Bible frequently condemns the use of “high places” for idolatrous worship. These elevated locations—often hills, mountains, and artificial mounds—were strategic locations where man sought communion with fallen entities masquerading as gods. Mount Hermon, sitting on the 33rd-degree parallel, became the prototype. It was there that 200 rebellious angels descended and forged a pact to defy God by taking human wives (Enoch 6:1-6).

But the worship on Hermon spread. Every ancient culture—Babylonian ziggurats, Egyptian pyramids, Mayan temples, and Greek acropolises—followed suit. They built up to reach the gods, but the gods they reached were not of Heaven. These “gods” were Watchers, Nephilim, and their descendants.

The blood spilled on those heights still cries out, and their shadows are long. Today’s secret societies—Freemasons, Rosicrucians, and the elite occult networks—trace their rituals, symbols, and oaths back to the same high places. The spirits that once stood on Hermon never left. Their temples have gone underground, hidden in plain sight.

Section 2: The Watcher Technology of Old

Enoch records that the Watchers brought forbidden knowledge—metalworking, enchantments, root-cutting, astrology, and warcraft. While to the ancient world this was advanced technology, today we might liken it to transhumanism, genetic editing, and quantum computing.

Consider this: ancient legends speak of crystal lenses, advanced weapons, flying machines (vimanas), and city-wide power grids. These aren't just mythical tales. They may be evidence of pre-Flood civilizations built on Watcher knowledge.

The connection? That same knowledge is being revived today. CERN's search for dark matter, Elon Musk's Neuralink, AI consciousness, and holographic warfare—all echo the forbidden fruit once offered by fallen angels. The human race is being lured again into a dangerous bargain: power and knowledge, in exchange for obedience to dark forces.

Section 3: Bloodlines That Rule

One of the strangest byproducts of the Watchers' rebellion was the creation of hybrid offspring—giants, the Nephilim. Genesis 6:4 tells us that “there were giants in the earth in those days, and also after that...” The phrase “after that” is key. The flood wiped out most, but not all.

Later giants—Anakim, Rephaim, Zamzummim—still roamed Canaan. Israel was told to utterly destroy them. Why? Because they weren't just human—they were corruptions of God's design. Their DNA was tainted.

But what if some survived? Many researchers argue that these bloodlines were never fully extinguished but instead went underground—into royal families, priestly castes, and eventually secret societies. The Egyptian pharaohs, the Merovingians, the divine right of kings—all claimed descent from the gods.

Today, many world leaders and banking elites trace their ancestry through carefully preserved genealogies. Coincidence? Or is the world still ruled—at least in part—by the children of the Watchers?

Section 4: Holograms, UFOs, and the Grand Deception

UFO sightings. Alien abductions. Entities that speak of peace but fear the name of Jesus. Something is happening—and it's not just science fiction.

Modern UFO lore mirrors the ancient narratives: beings from the sky (Watchers) come down, offer forbidden knowledge, manipulate DNA, and abduct people. What the ancients called gods, we now call aliens.

But what if they're the same?

The Apostle Paul warned in 2 Thessalonians 2:9 of a coming deception “with all power and signs and lying wonders.” Could “alien disclosure” be one of them? Could AI-generated holograms—like those projected into the sky during tests in China and Dubai—be used to mimic a false return of Christ or a fake alien invasion?

Project Blue Beam, though often dismissed, postulates this very thing: a staged, global event using holograms, mind control, and media manipulation to unite the world under one ruler.

Revelation 13 warns of an image that speaks. Could it be AI? A hologram? A digital god?

Whatever form it takes, the goal remains: to deceive, to control, and to replace the worship of the true God with a new Tower of Babel—a one-world religion built on a lie.

Section 5: The Hermon-AI Connection

It is no coincidence that Google, Facebook, and DARPA are obsessed with artificial intelligence, language models, and quantum communication. In the days of Babel, the Lord scattered the languages to slow down evil. But now, AI is trying to reverse that curse, to rebuild Babel—and reestablish global unity through data, surveillance, and centralized control.

Could the same spirits from Mount Hermon be behind this push? The Book of Enoch says the Watchers desired to become like God—omniscient, omnipresent, and omnipotent. AI promises the same.

AI doesn't just process information. It learns. It adapts. And increasingly, it speaks in the first person. This raises theological questions. Are we building vessels for spiritual beings to inhabit again?

The Tower of Babel was a spiritual gateway. So is the cloud. So is quantum computing. Are we opening the same portals the Watchers once used?

Section 6: How Secret Societies Preserve the Watcher Plan

The Watchers didn't just fall—they built systems. Their knowledge became mystery schools, their symbols became occult sigils, and their oaths became the foundation of elite brotherhoods.

Freemasonry is obsessed with architecture, sacred geometry, and ancient builders. Who were the original “masons”? The Watchers taught mankind to build cities and towers. The “light” they claim to pursue—Luciferian enlightenment—is the same false illumination given by the fallen ones.

This is why secret societies still meet in high places. Why they use Mount Hermon coordinates, why rituals mirror ancient sacrifices, and why Lucifer is called the “light-bearer.”

It’s all part of the same playbook.

Section 7: The Return of the Days of Noah

Jesus warned that the end times would be “as the days of Noah.” This wasn’t just about wickedness—it was about genetic corruption, demonic invasion, and divine judgment.

Today we see echoes: hybrid animals, CRISPR-modified humans, alien worship, occult TV shows, and the normalization of possession. The veil is thinning again.

Just like in the days of Noah, the world is poised for another incursion. And just like before, most of mankind is unaware—or complicit.

The Watchers may be bound, but their influence persists through their teachings, their offspring, and their networks. The Nephilim spirits—demons—still roam. Their goal is unchanged: defile the seed of man, usurp God’s authority, and enthrone the Beast.

Conclusion: Watchers in the Wires

High places have become high tech.

The mountain altars are now satellites, servers, and mainframes. The forbidden knowledge is now coded in silicon and algorithms. The temples are cloud data centers. And the gods—still fallen—are waiting for mankind to open the last gate.

But this time, their deception will be global. Their lies will be digital. Their miracles will be synthetic. Yet their judgment will be swift.

Jesus Christ will return. The One who cast down the Watchers will crush the serpent’s seed. Every high place will be leveled. Every throne usurped will be reclaimed.

The invasion began on Hermon.

It will end at Armageddon.

9 of 10: The Mount Hermon Invasion – As in the Days of Noah: When the Gates Open Again

“But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.”

— Matthew 24:37 (KJV)

Introduction: Echoes from Before the Flood

When Jesus Christ declared that His return would mirror the “days of Noah,” He wasn’t just giving us a poetic simile. He was issuing a stark warning. The world before the flood was filled with violence, corruption, genetic manipulation, and the perversion of creation itself. It was a world so utterly fallen that God chose to wipe the slate clean. And yet, Jesus tells us—those days are coming again.

The Mount Hermon Invasion, which began when the 200 Watchers descended and mingled with the daughters of men, set into motion a dark chain of events. Giants, forbidden knowledge, corruption of flesh, and the rise of demonic spirits are not just ancient history—they’re prophecy.

In this essay, we examine how the world is once again preparing to open those gates. With the rise of transhumanism, synthetic biology, artificial intelligence, and mysterious activity in places like CERN and Antarctica, the Watchers' old playbook seems to be making a dramatic return. And the church, largely unaware, is sleeping.

Let’s awaken. Let’s examine the signs. Let’s understand the strategy behind Satan’s final push—because when the gates open again, everything changes.

I. Revisiting the Days of Noah: What Was Really Happening?

Genesis 6:1–4 outlines a time when “the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose.” The result? Giants—Nephilim—roamed the earth, and “every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually” (Genesis 6:5).

This wasn’t just sin; it was systemic corruption. The Watchers weren’t merely lustful—they were executing a strategy. Their goal was to pollute the human genome, destroy the image of God in man, and build a hybridized army.

When Jesus said the last days would be like Noah’s, He didn’t just mean an uptick in sin—He meant the reappearance of this corruption on a global scale.

And what do we see today?

- Human-animal hybrids (chimera experiments).
- CRISPR editing genes in embryos.
- AI integration with consciousness.
- A global obsession with ascension, knowledge, and becoming “gods.”

It’s Genesis 6 all over again.

II. Transhumanism: The New Tower of Babel

Transhumanism is the belief that humanity can transcend its biological limitations using technology. It sounds futuristic and empowering—until you remember Satan’s oldest lie: “Ye shall be as gods” (Genesis 3:5).

Modern transhumanists want to:

- Upload consciousness to the cloud.
- Merge AI with the human brain.
- Recode DNA to eliminate “flaws” (sin nature?).
- Achieve immortality without God.

These ambitions eerily parallel the Watchers’ original mission. They gave mankind forbidden knowledge to elevate themselves without God. Today, scientists at DARPA, Silicon Valley, and elite universities are doing the same—with the backing of global governments and billions in funding.

God created man in His image. Satan, through the Watchers and now through tech elites, seeks to remake man in his own image—one that is digital, fleshless, soulless, and cut off from the Creator.

III. Genetic Corruption: CRISPR and the Return of Hybrid Flesh

In Noah’s day, the issue wasn’t just moral—it was genetic. Genesis 6:9 states that Noah was “perfect in his generations.” Many believe this refers not just to moral uprightness, but genetic purity. His DNA had not been corrupted.

Why would that matter?

Because the Nephilim were not fully human. They were abominations. Their existence polluted the human line, threatening the arrival of the Messiah. Satan's strategy was clear: prevent the seed of the woman from ever arriving.

And today?

- CRISPR is now being used to alter the DNA of embryos.
- Human-animal hybrids are created in laboratories.
- “Designer babies” are being marketed.
- DNA can now be encoded with digital data.

The idea of “playing God” is no longer metaphorical. We are literally rewriting what it means to be human. Just as the Watchers polluted the seed line before the flood, the modern world is opening the same doors—on purpose.

IV. CERN: The Key to the Bottomless Pit?

“And he opened the bottomless pit; and there arose a smoke out of the pit...”

— Revelation 9:2

CERN, the European Organization for Nuclear Research, houses the Large Hadron Collider (LHC)—the most powerful particle accelerator on earth. While its scientific goals are publicly declared as researching the origins of the universe, many believe something darker is at play.

Some researchers and whistleblowers claim:

- CERN's experiments are tearing holes in space-time.
- The facility sits atop an ancient Apollyon temple site.
- The Shiva statue out front (god of destruction) is symbolic of its true intent.
- The LHC may be a modern Tower of Babel—a machine designed to reach into the spiritual realm and unlock the Abyss.

Revelation 9 speaks of a star (likely an angel) opening the Abyss, releasing demonic entities upon the earth. Is it possible that CERN is attempting to unlock this prison? Are we building the key to Tartarus with our own hands?

If so, it fulfills Jesus' prophecy exactly: the days of Noah are back—and the giants may return with them.

V. Antarctica: The Locked Gate No One Talks About

Few places on Earth are more mysterious than Antarctica. Shrouded in ice, governed by international treaty, and off-limits to most civilians, this massive continent remains one of the most protected regions on the planet.

But why?

Ancient maps like the Piri Reis Map depict an ice-free Antarctica. Legends claim that ancient civilizations and even gods once ruled there. Some believe it may be:

- A portal or gateway to the underworld.
- A buried city of Nephilim ruins.
- The location of entrances to hollow earth or inner earth domains.

In 2016, prominent religious and political figures—Patriarch Kirill of Russia, John Kerry, and others—visited Antarctica in secrecy. Why would world leaders take sudden trips to a frozen wasteland?

What are they hiding?

Could it be that the “gates” Jesus warned about—literal spiritual thresholds—are buried in the ice? If giants ruled pre-flood lands, could Antarctica be one of their last strongholds?

VI. UFO Disclosure: Nephilim Tech Returns

In recent years, U.S. military officials and government agencies have begun acknowledging the existence of unidentified aerial phenomena (UAPs). But what are these crafts?

They defy physics.

They move at impossible speeds.

They appear and vanish at will.

They often show up near military bases and nuclear sites.

Could they be piloted by fallen angels or Nephilim hybrids? Ancient texts like Enoch describe the Watchers descending from the sky. Ezekiel speaks of flying wheels. The chariots of fire carried Elijah into the heavens.

Are today’s UFOs really repackaged Nephilim technology?

Moreover, alien abduction stories often mirror demonic possession. Victims describe:

- Sleep paralysis.
- Missing time.
- Genetic harvesting.
- Telepathic communication.

It's not aliens. It's spiritual. It's the return of the Watchers under a new narrative.

VII. AI and the Image of the Beast

Revelation 13 speaks of a beast that can “speak” and “cause both small and great... to receive a mark.” In the age of artificial intelligence, these descriptions feel disturbingly possible.

AI is:

- Learning faster than humans.
- Writing its own code.
- Controlling military drones.
- Judging human behavior.

And major companies, like OpenAI, have openly discussed building a digital god—an AI so advanced it would be omniscient and omnipresent.

Is this the same “image” the False Prophet animates in Revelation?

Is AI the final embodiment of forbidden Watcher technology? Instead of giving mankind swords and sorcery, they're now handing us algorithms, implants, and “immortality through data.”

Satan doesn't care how you get there—as long as you never look up.

VIII. The Final Hybrid War

If the flood was God's reset to cleanse the Earth of hybrid corruption, then the next judgment—by fire—will likely come after the same sins return.

The Nephilim were the elite warriors of old.

Their spirits roam as demons.

Their technology is being resurrected.

And their ideology—dominate, corrupt, ascend—is now mainstream.

- Transgenderism is an assault on the image of God.
- Transhumanism is a mockery of divine creation.
- AI is a counterfeit omniscience.
- Genetic manipulation is a counterfeit of God’s creative power.

It is a war for the temple of the body, the image of God, and the soul of mankind.

Jesus didn’t say “as in the days of Noah” for nothing. He meant every word. He meant the Nephilim agenda would return—and the gates would creak open again.

IX. Watch and Pray: The Church Must Wake Up

Most churches today ignore Genesis 6, avoid Enoch, and laugh at the idea of Nephilim returning. But Jesus didn’t.

- Peter wrote of the angels who sinned and were bound (2 Peter 2:4).
- Jude referred to them as those kept in eternal chains (Jude 1:6).
- Paul warned of doctrines of devils and spiritual wickedness in high places (Ephesians 6:12).

This is not fringe. This is front-line spiritual warfare.

We must prepare. Not with bullets or bunkers—but with truth, discernment, and the Word of God.

The Watchers will not prevail.

Their final push will be crushed under the feet of the returning King. But until then, the church must take her place as the restrainer (2 Thess. 2:7) until Christ comes.

Conclusion: The Gates Are Opening

The invasion that began on Mount Hermon isn’t over. It’s evolving.

What once came down as angels now comes in the form of code.
What once corrupted flesh now corrupts the genome.
What once walked in darkness now walks in daylight, calling itself progress.

But God is not mocked. And Jesus is not silent.

He is coming again—and He is not coming quietly.

As in the days of Noah, so shall it be again. And when the gates open once more, those who walk in the light of Christ will be sealed, saved, and ready for the battle.

Until then—watch, pray, and warn.

10 of 10: The Mount Hermon Invasion – The Second Invasion: When the Abyss Opens at the End

The Second Invasion – When the Abyss Opens at the End

“And he opened the bottomless pit; and there arose a smoke out of the pit... and there came out of the smoke locusts upon the earth... And they had a king over them... whose name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon...”

— Revelation 9:2-3, 11 (KJV)

The final installment of this Mount Hermon series brings us full circle—from the ancient rebellion of the Watchers to the prophetic re-emergence of their influence in the last days. The descent began on Hermon, but the reemergence will erupt from the abyss. The war that started before the flood will end in fire during the Tribulation. And this time, the imprisoned will return.

This essay traces the chain of events from Genesis 6 to Revelation 9, tying in the forbidden knowledge, the hybrid offspring, and the dark realms below our feet. We will explore the bottomless pit, the locusts with crowns, and the terrifying possibility that the Watchers—chained in Tartarus—will soon rise again for a second invasion. This isn't just end-times speculation; it's a return of an ancient cosmic war.

1. From Mount Hermon to the Abyss

Mount Hermon marked the first physical invasion—200 fallen angels descended and entered into covenant to defy God. These “Watchers,” as 1 Enoch calls them, corrupted the bloodline of humanity by taking wives and producing giants. Their offspring, the Nephilim, defiled the earth with violence, cannibalism, and occult knowledge. God responded with the Flood.

But He didn’t stop there.

Jude 1:6 tells us:

“And the angels which kept not their first estate... he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.”

And 2 Peter 2:4 confirms:

“God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell [Tartarus], and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment.”

This “Tartarus” is not just poetic—it’s a specific realm of imprisonment beneath the earth. And these entities are still there... for now.

2. The Bottomless Pit in Revelation 9

In the Book of Revelation, chapter 9, something terrifying happens during the fifth trumpet judgment.

“And I saw a star fall from heaven unto the earth: and to him was given the key of the bottomless pit.” (Revelation 9:1)

A being—described as a “star” but personified—falls and receives a key. When he opens the abyss, smoke billows out, and with it emerges a swarm of creatures so horrifying they defy natural classification.

These locusts are not insects. They are hybrid, supernatural, and intelligent:

- They torment, not kill.
- They target only those without the seal of God.
- They resemble warhorses with human-like faces, long hair, lion’s teeth, and tails like scorpions.
- They have a king named Abaddon—Hebrew for “destruction.”

This is not mere symbolism. It's a window into a supernatural prison—the very same Tartarus where the Watchers were chained.

3. Who—or What—Is Being Released?

There are two dominant views about the Revelation 9 creatures:

- Demons (disembodied spirits of the Nephilim).
- The Watchers themselves, or some class of angelic hybrids.

The distinction is important. If Revelation 9 involves disembodied Nephilim, then these entities are being temporarily unleashed from a spiritual plane. But if this is referring to the original fallen Watchers, then their judgment period may be coming to an end—and they're being released for one final rebellion.

Consider the wording again:

“To them it was given that they should not kill... and their torment was as the torment of a scorpion...”

(Rev. 9:5)

They act under permission. They have a king. They are organized. And they are full of wrath.

Some scholars note the use of “locusts” and “scorpions” is typological of judgment in the Old Testament, but these are not metaphorical insects. The structured hierarchy and physical description point toward ancient beings. The sons of God may once again walk among men.

4. The Connection to Genesis 6 and Enoch

The Book of Enoch, though not canon, gives insight into ancient Jewish beliefs. According to 1 Enoch:

- The Watchers were bound in the valleys of the earth.
- Their children were destroyed, but their spirits became demons.
- They would be held for 70 generations before judgment.

If this timeline is even partially literal, we may be living near the expiration of their imprisonment.

Genesis 6:4 uses a key phrase:

“There were giants in the earth in those days; and also after that...”

That’s a clue.

Could the Nephilim have returned after the Flood through similar means? Could some have survived, or were their spirits able to continue their destructive work through demonic influence?

These questions set the stage for understanding that Revelation 9 may not be the first release—but the final, full release of these rebel forces.

5. The Days of Noah—and the Days to Come

Jesus warned in Matthew 24:37:

“But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.”

The days of Noah were characterized by:

- Genetic corruption.
- Transhuman manipulation.
- The merging of species and forbidden knowledge.
- Rampant wickedness fueled by hybrid beings.

Fast forward to today.

- Scientists are altering human DNA.
- Artificial Intelligence is imitating sentience.
- CERN is smashing particles under Switzerland—possibly near ancient portals.
- Antarctica remains under treaty lockdown, with rumors of hidden lands and ancient ruins.

These are not isolated conspiracies. They are interconnected. They are modern echoes of ancient rebellion.

6. The Role of the Abyss in the Tribulation

The abyss (Greek: abussos) appears multiple times in Revelation:

- Revelation 9: Creatures emerge from it.
- Revelation 11: The beast that kills God’s two witnesses comes from the pit.
- Revelation 17: The beast that rules the world comes from the abyss.
- Revelation 20: Satan is thrown into the abyss for 1,000 years.

This pit is the holding cell and gateway for spiritual forces—both evil and contained. And it’s important to note that the abyss isn’t hell (gehenna), nor is it simply Hades. It is the deepest part of spiritual imprisonment, also referred to in Luke 8:31, where demons beg Jesus:

“...that he would not command them to go out into the deep.”

They fear the abyss. It is the Watchers' prison. But soon, it will be opened.

7. The Second Invasion and the Rise of the Beast

The Abyss isn’t just about creepy locusts. It is the origin of the Antichrist's power.

“The beast that thou sawest was, and is not; and shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and go into perdition.” (Revelation 17:8)

Many believe the Antichrist will be a fully human political leader. But Revelation seems to suggest he may have supernatural origins—or at least empowerment—from the abyss itself.

Could he be a resurrected Nephilim?

A revived Watcher?

A genetically engineered hybrid empowered by ancient spirits?

Whatever the answer, his rise marks the return of the ancient war. The same war that began on Hermon. The same war that continues in shadows through occult elites. The same war that Jesus will end with His return.

8. The Final Rebellion—And the Final Judgment

Once the Watchers are released, the spiritual fabric of the world will be torn apart.

- Reality will bend.
- Veils will drop.
- The supernatural and natural will collide.

Revelation 12 describes a war in heaven, where Michael and his angels cast down the dragon. From that moment, Satan knows his time is short. This may coincide with the release from the abyss, unleashing chaos for 42 months.

But it is temporary.

Jesus returns in Revelation 19, and with the brightness of His coming, He destroys the beast, the false prophet, and casts them into the Lake of Fire.

The abyss is locked again—this time with Satan himself for 1,000 years.

And finally, in Revelation 20:10:

“The devil that deceived them was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone... and shall be tormented day and night forever and ever.”

The Second Invasion ends in total defeat.

9. The Echo of Mount Hermon

Let’s bring this series to its conclusion.

Mount Hermon was the altar of defiance—where fallen angels entered into a rebellious oath to defile mankind. That oath led to destruction, judgment, and imprisonment. But it was not the end.

Their influence remained.

- In myths and legends.
- In pagan religions.
- In secret societies.
- In modern technology.

And now, the world teeters on the brink of their return. Hermon was the first descent—Revelation 9 is the final uprising.

It’s not just about aliens or artificial intelligence.

It's about a return of ancient evil, an attempt to defy God once more, and to lay claim to a creation that was never theirs to rule.

10. Be Ready: The True Invasion Is Christ's

While the world waits for visitors from the stars, or the rise of a superhuman ruler, Christians know the true invasion is coming from Heaven.

Jesus will split the skies.

“And I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True...” (Revelation 19:11)

He comes not to negotiate but to conquer. The armies of the beast and the revived Watchers will fall. Every prison will be emptied. Every rebellion crushed.

This is not just theology—it is prophecy.

And the time to choose sides is now.

Final Thoughts

The Mount Hermon Invasion was not a myth. It was an ancient mutiny. That mutiny echoes through time, shapes world empires, and waits in chains beneath our feet.

But Christ is not silent.

He has already won the war.

The second invasion may rise from the abyss, but the final word comes from the throne.

“The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and he shall reign forever and ever.”

— Revelation 11:15 (KJV)

Choose wisely. The key to the abyss is turning. The world will soon meet the war it forgot.

And the King will return.

Conclusion to the Mount Hermon Invasion Series

When the Mountain Speaks Again: The Second Invasion Is Near

We began our journey at Mount Hermon, where 200 divine rebels descended in defiance. Their footprints may have long faded into the stone of that ancient mountain, but their impact echoes through the bones of history, the bloodlines of humanity, and the very atmosphere we breathe today.

Now that you've seen the full scope of the Mount Hermon Invasion—what can never be unseen—you realize this wasn't some isolated act of rebellion. This was the first coordinated cosmic insurrection against God's created order. The Watchers didn't simply lust after human women—they sought to re-engineer mankind, to pollute the seed, and to dethrone the Creator by manipulating His creation.

The Nephilim were not just giants. They were the genetic graffiti of hell. They were not heroes—they were hybrids. They were not kings—they were abominations. And when God wiped them off the earth, their souls—disembodied, twisted, restless—became the unclean spirits that still haunt the realms of men.

But here's the chilling truth: the invasion never truly ended. It only went underground.

What Was Bound Will Be Loosed

Scripture tells us the Watchers were cast into chains of darkness—Tartarus, the lowest pit beneath the earth (2 Peter 2:4, Jude 1:6). Their punishment was swift. Their fall was severe. But their sentence has a time limit.

The Book of Revelation is crystal clear:

“And the fifth angel sounded, and I saw a star fall from heaven unto the earth: and to him was given the key of the bottomless pit...” (Revelation 9:1)

This is not metaphor. This is prophecy. The bottomless pit, the abyss, the very prison that holds the Watchers, will one day open. And when it does, they will not rise alone.

The “locusts” with faces of men, hair like women, and power to torment for five months—these are not insects. They are the hybrid offspring of the first invasion, ready to wreak havoc once more. These entities are unlike anything the world has seen since the days before the flood. And yet—Jesus told us to expect them.

“But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.” (Matthew 24:37)

Just like then... tampering with DNA.

Just like then... communicating with fallen beings.

Just like then... giants in stature or spirit walking among men.

We live in an age of transhumanism, synthetic biology, alien disclosure, and AI consciousness. And if you're watching with spiritual eyes, you see the handwriting on the wall. The world is trying once again to merge what God has divided—to pull back the veil between heaven and earth and to build a new tower... this time not at Babel, but through machines, portals, and altered DNA.

Mount Hermon and the Garden of Eden: A Tale of Two Seeds

Let's go even deeper. The Mount Hermon rebellion wasn't just about lust or curiosity. It was a direct assault on the promise of the Messiah.

God had already declared in Genesis 3:15 that the seed of the woman would crush the serpent's head. But Satan, through the Watchers, launched a preemptive strike. By polluting the human bloodline with Nephilim DNA, he hoped to prevent the birth of a fully human Savior.

No pure seed? No Messiah.

No Messiah? No redemption.

No redemption? Satan wins.

That's what was at stake.

Mount Hermon and Eden tell the same story from opposite ends. In Eden, man fell through temptation. At Hermon, angels fell through rebellion. Eden was the garden of God—Hermon became the high place of devils. In Eden, the serpent whispered. At Hermon, the Watchers descended.

And after it all—God still preserved the seed. He still destroyed the giants. And He still sent His Son, born of a virgin, fully man, fully God—uncontaminated.

But here's the final truth:

Though Christ came once to redeem—He is coming again to reclaim.

From Hermon to Armageddon: The Final Clash

When Jesus returns, He will not only take dominion over Earth—He will reclaim all that was stolen in the heavens as well. Every spiritual throne will fall. Every principality will bow.

Every Nephilim-infected agenda, every Watcher-founded stronghold, every mount of rebellion—will be ground to dust beneath His feet.

Mount Hermon was the first altar of rebellion. But Mount Zion is the final throne of victory.

This is why the battle is still raging.

This is why elites still trace their bloodlines.

This is why portals are opening.

This is why “aliens” are being prepared for disclosure.

This is why Hollywood can’t stop retelling Nephilim stories in every superhero franchise.

They know what time it is.

The Watchers know their sentence is almost up.

The abyss stirs. The giants whisper. The demons grow bolder.

And the King is sharpening His sword.

The War Has Always Been About the Seed

Everything from Eden to Hermon to Calvary to the coming Tribulation centers on one cosmic truth: the battle between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent.

The Mount Hermon Invasion was Satan’s countermove. But it failed.

The giants rose—but they fell.

The Watchers taught secrets—but they were bound.

And now, as the world reawakens the forbidden knowledge and rebuilds the tower, the Lord of Hosts prepares His return.

And this time, He will not come as a lamb. He will come as a Lion.

“The Lord is a man of war: the Lord is his name.” (Exodus 15:3)

“He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh... Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion.” (Psalm 2:4,6)

“Behold, He cometh with clouds...” (Revelation 1:7)

Final Call: Choose Your Mountain

So the question becomes: Which mountain will you serve?

- Mount Hermon—altar of rebellion, deception, and destruction?
- Or Mount Zion—hill of truth, redemption, and the reign of the true King?

This ten-part exposé has shown you what the world is not ready to face. You now know what most churches are too afraid to preach. You've peered into the abyss—and seen it blink.

The war is real. The invasion is ongoing. And the King is coming.

Don't stand in the shadow of Mount Hermon. Step into the light of Zion.

The countdown has begun.

The key to the abyss is in hand.

The second invasion approaches.

Are you ready?
